

Inspiration

In our life inspiration is very important; it gives us a reason to become successful as a person and professionally too. When we talk about inspiration it could be anything; for some people it can be work, music, movies, sports and even a relationship or a person who inspires them to become successful in their lives or achieve a goal. I have also noticed that there is always a time in our life when we really get inspired by something, and we become so determined to achieve that goal in our life, and from that moment we start working on it, and make it our dream. As I have said, everybody has inspiration, so do I, my inspiration is my workplace which is Pharmacy, where I love caring for and helping people through my profession.

Pharmacy is very much part of our daily lives. The world we are living in is having so many problems, and so many different kinds of new diseases are being discovered every day. Time to time in our existence, we need to seek medical attention to live a health life. Some people have chronic diseases, and they have to take the same medications every day for the rest of their lives, therefore pharmacy has become part of their daily routine. This would say in today's lifestyle, pharmacy has a very important role for healthy living. Now if I would say, after 10+ years of working in the pharmacy as a Pharmacy Technician, I love my work that would not be wrong, and since the day I started, up till now, I have gone through so many different experiences and phases in pharmacy business. I enjoy my work so much, and it has become my inspiration to go further in the pharmacy field. Following this inspiration, I enrolled into Pharmacy School of Pacific University to become a successful Pharmacist. As I said, I love the Pharmacy profession and it keeps me going furthermore into deeper studies of this subject. As I am in Pharmacy school, I have learned many more different pathways Pharmacy can take, and it has intrigued me to go into research medicine. I would say I am a person who wants to do something different every day and wants to learn something new, that keeps me going and keeps me motivated, therefore research in medicine would be the perfect profession for me. Now to follow this dream I wanted to apply for Master of Research program available through Pacific University School of Pharmacy as a co-degree.

The people who work in the pharmacy are very responsible for their patient's wellbeing, and their adherence to the medicine they take. Pharmacists have to counsel patients to take their medications safely and in a timely manner to get the benefit of the dose prescribed by their physician. I did not know about the dosing regimen before joining pharmacy school and was not aware of recommended doses for each medical problem by their society. This has given me an idea of learning the techniques of making medications and how the therapeutics dose gets evaluated and how to tweak the doses for different patients. I think taking up Master course will fulfill this desire to know more in depth about drugs and will give me more opportunities in my career to explore more avenues and get more inspirations. I want to work in Industry field to design new drugs and get more hand on experience of developing and experimenting of different chemicals and how we can change little structures to work differently in human body and give benefits of health living to our patients.
